

Fresno County Regional Long-Range Transit Plan

Plan Overview

The Fresno Council of Governments (Fresno COG) is undertaking development of Fresno County's first integrated Long-Range Transit Plan (LRTP). When completed, the LRTP will guide transit and multimodal investment in the Fresno County Region through the year 2050.

Plan Goals

In line with state and federal transportation goals, the LRTP will detail how to provide and preserve a sustainable, safe, innovative, integrated, and efficient transit system to enhance the Region's economy and livability for all. The LRTP will:

- Integrate the efforts, projects, and future operations of the major transit providers serving Fresno County through the year 2050
- Identify a preferred long-range vision for Fresno County's public transit system
- Provide guidance for future investments
- Identify transit projects and alternatives that consider and improve sustainability, preservation, mobility, safety, innovation, economy, health and equity
- Integrate the regional movement of bicyclists and pedestrians with public transit options and plans

VISION STATEMENT

"A responsive, integrated, welcoming public transportation system that is safe, affordable, uses innovative technologies, provides equitable access, enhances regional and local mobility, and provides sustainable transportation options. The system will have multiple operators to ensure responsiveness to local constituents, but will be perceived by users as one seamless system throughout Fresno County."

YOUR INPUT COUNTS!

The LRTP will reflect suggestions and concerns of County residents through a variety of sources, including:

- A Steering Committee consisting of federal, state, and local transit and transportation agencies that represent your interests. Members of the Steering Committee will be promoting partnerships with constituents and stakeholders.
- A Community Outreach Survey to provide a snapshot of community attitudes concerning transit needs and gather opinions for future visions and improvements.
- Community Engagement Workshops and Pop-up Events where you can learn more about the Plan development process and provide your input.
